HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER.

The great popularity of this preparation, after its test of many years, should be an assurance, even to the most skeptical, that it is really meritorious. Those who have used HALL'S HAIR RENEWER know that it does all that is claimed.

It causes new growth of hair on bald heads—provided the hair follicles are not dead, which is seldom the case; restores natural color to gray or faded hair; preserves the scalp healthful and clear of dandruff; prevents the hair falling off or changing color; keeps it soft, pliant, lustrous, and causes it to grow long and thick.

HALL'S HAIR RENEWER produces its effects by the healthful influence of its vegetable ingredients, which invigorate and rejuvenate. It is not a dye, and is a delightful article for toilet use. Containing no alcohol, it does not evaporate quickly and dry up the natural oil, leaving the hair harsh and brittle, as do other preparations.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

Colors them brown or black, as desired, and is the best dye, because it is harmless; produces a permanent natural color; and, being a single preparation, is more convenient of application than any other.

AMATEUR PHOTOGRAPHY.

A Highly Popular Amusement—The Small Cost of Outfits.

"It is astonishing," said a dealer in photographic materials to a reporter "how much can be accomplished by totally inexperienced amateurs in the art of photographing, with a little taste and judgment. The introduction of the gelatino-bromide dry plate has so revolutionized photography that but little knowledge of it is essential. Of course, it is scarcely to be supposed that success should always attend one's first efforts, but rapid progress can generally be made by old or young, lady or gentleman, who may manifest the slightest disposition to excel. Unlike the old wet plate, this new process has the advantage of admitting a much wider latitude of exposure—that is to say, the actual time which the sensitive plate may now be subjected to light, though still important, is far less so than by the old collodion process, and the subsequent operations are free from the former objections of complexity, uncertainty and stains. The apparatus and chemicals required are also few and inexpensive, and there is nothing which the veriest tyro in chemistry can not readily master. This is why amateur photography has of late become so popular, and so great is the demand that we make special instruments and publish special catalogues on the subject. Young people buy them for amusement, and men of family buy them to take pictures of their homes and surroundings. Nor is such a camera in any sense a toy. All are practical working instruments, such as are in constant use by professional photographers. They are adapted for landscape and out-door groups, and in a good light require but a second's time to make a picture. But in buying the amateur should not forget that he is not going to make an experiment. Success is assured if the directions are followed. Thousands have succeeded with only the ordinary amount of brains and some with less than is allowed to mankind generally. The chief advice I have to offer is, when you buy, buy as good an outfit as you can afford. With a cheap instrument you can do good work, but with a better instrument you can do better work more easily."

"What do some of the amateur outfits cost?"

"For $11 you can buy a mahogany camera, for making pictures vertically or horizontally, measuring four or five inches, with one double plate-holder, fine single acromatic lens, improved tripod and carrying-case, with an extra double dry plate-holder. The entire weight of such an equipment is only 8 1-2 pounds. From that they run up to $25, $37, $40 and $50, according to the quality and size of the camera. For a developing outfit, with the $11 equipment, that is a 4x5 picture, the cost is $5.25. In this you want a pocket ruby lantern, a dozen dry plates, two developing trays, several bottles of chemicals, funnels, filtering paper, scales and weights and a few other articles. This includes every thing necessary for developing a dozen negatives. One of the newest things in this line is the detective camera. It is focussed once for all by means of a ground glass which slides in the place to be occupied by the double dry plate-holder for objects of various distances, and the position of the focussing lever on the top of the camera is marked for each distance. After this the ground glass may be entirely dispensed with, as it is then only necessary to estimate the distance of the object to be photographed and move the focussing lever to the mark corresponding to that distance, when the camera will obviously be in focus. The small lens serves to throw the picture on a piece of ground glass on the top of the camera, thus showing the position of the image on the plate. When the picture appears in proper position on the ground glass it is only necessary to touch the button on the right of the camera and the exposure of the plate is instantly made, its development being afterward accomplished in the ordinary manner. Another novel and most ingenious little instrument and one that supplies a want long felt in the profession is the pneumatic photograph shutter. This is a long rubber tube, connected with the camera, the end of which the operator holds in his hand and by which the lens is exposed and capped. It has been remarked by eminent photographers that the arrangement is a most useful one in enabling persons to be photograped without being aware of it. The efforts in this direction hitherto necessitated the operator being close to the camera, but here we have an instrument which permits him to be in any part of the studio he pleases. Many have experienced the difficulty of taking children's portraits with the proper amount of profile, but with this instrument all difficulty vanishes and the operator may be by the side of the child and attract its attention in any direction.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

—"Johannes Factotum," who compiles for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat much curious information about the origin of familiar phrases, says: "The name of porterhouse steak, universally applied to a particular cut of beef in the United States, arose in a peculiar manner. A man in New York city, who kept, what was then called a porterhouse, used to buy a piece of beef and have it cut into small steaks, for convenience of serving them to his customers. They were seen by other purchasers at the butcher's, and it became common to say, 'Cut me some steak like you do for the porter-house.' Hence the name."

M. L. LaCount, of Clayton, Ga., after serving a sentence in the jail at Atlanta for violating the revenue laws, returned paralyzed in the legs and quite helpless. His young wife, in attempting to lift him from the bed to a chair, ruptured a blood vessel and died, leaving him with one child two years old and another six months old.

PITH AND POINT.

—There are two things which a man is bound to take on faith—his wife's private opinion of him and what sausages are made from.—Fall River Advance.

—A writer describes a beauty as having "an exquisitely moulded face, of which two dark hazel eyes are the central feature." Where is her nose situated?—Burlington Free Press.

—There is an article going the rounds of the press entitled, "How to get rich." And yet there are more than a dozen poor families right here in this town. This comes of not reading the newspapers.—Norristown Herald.

—The reason why people do not do as they are told hundreds of times in papers, books, pulpits and elsewhere is that they never take it to themselves, but always fit it on somebody else, and then wonder why people don't try to mend their ways.—Chicago Ledger.

—At a recent meeting of Sorosis in New York Miss Parloa startle the ladies by asking: "How many of you know how to boil a potato?" It is rather singular that Miss Parloa should have mistaken a meeting of the brightest women in New York for an intelligence office.—Norristown Herald.

—"Them's mine," said Colonel Yerger. "All right, Colonel," replied Jules Barnfeldt, the bartender. "And be careful not to charge me with them twice." "That's something I never do." "You had better not overcharge me, because I keep all the drinks I take in my head." "I knew that, Colonel, before you spoke. Anybody can tell that just by looking at you." N. B.—Colonel Yerger's face looks as if it had been painted red and varnished.—Texas Siftings.

—Tommy Gray:

I am six years old
And I like play and fun,
I mean to grow up
Like George Washington.
So when mother said,
"Who ate all the pie?"
I spoke like a man,
And said: "It was I."

But she didn't say
She'd rather lose the pie
And know that her boy
Would not tell a lie.
She just shut me up
Where I couldn't see,
Then sent me to bed
Without any tea.

AHEAD OF EDISON.

An Inventive Train News-Agent Who Antedated the Wizard.

"Edison may think he has this business of telegraphing from a moving train down fine," said the candy butcher, "but I can go him one better. I have been sending messages from a moving train for two years, and stopped only three months ago. That ain't all, either; I send my autograph by wire, and boxes of candy, fruit, novels, and a hull lot o' such things. Edison 'way behind the times."

"No, I hain't. I swear by the great horned spoon that I am telling the truth, s'help me. You doubt me? Of course. All great inventors have been greeted in this cold world by sneers and incredulity. That has been the fortune of all of us great men. But we get there just the same. You want to hear how I did it? Well, I'll tell you. About two years ago I went gone on a girl who lived down in the country in a house located about a half mile from the track in a little valley. There was no station there, and I didn't get to see her very often, except at a distance—a wave of a handkerchief, or some thing like that—and this wasn't satisfactory, as you may imagine. My train never passed that way unless I had a yearning that there would be an accident or something that would cause us to lay over two or three days. I used to think seriously about throwing myself off the rear car and getting hurt, so I could be carried to her dad's house and by her fair hands and loving tenderness nursed slowly back to the strength and health of a vigorous young manhood, as the story books have it. But I didn't throw myself off the train, not just then. Might have done it but for an idea. An idea came to me from out of the clouds, I guess. It was a regular inspiration. It broke all over me like a bad egg, which a granger threw at me once down the road in revenge for cheating him out of a nickel. It took possession of me from my brain to my heart. I wasn't long getting to work on it, either. The very next Sunday I stopped at the nearest station, hired a livery horse and carriage, and drove out to my girl's house. Under the seat in the carriage I had a big roll of telegraph wire which the linemen had left out in the storm. I told the girl of my little scheme, and she became enthusiastic over it. Between the house and the railroad, a half-mile away, was a piece of woods coming clear up to the track. Here we were walking, and I took along my roll of wire and some tools which she sneaked out of her dad's shop. We worked like beavers all the afternoon, and by night had a wire stretched from the track down the hillside to an arbor in the garden by the house. From that on I sent her a message every time I passed. Some days I sent her books, oranges, boxes of candy, every thing like that. How? Just as easy as falling off a log. I had stretched the wire from the top of a whistle post close by the side of the track, and in my kit I kept a lot of little wire fixin's which I made myself. They fit the wire nicely, and to 'em I could tie letters, light packages and such things, and then all I had to do was to watch for the whistle post, hoop in hand, and, on reaching the post, slip the hoop on the wire while the train was running forty miles an hour. Down the hillside the letter glided with great rapidity, and at the other end of the line she was waiting on the arbor bench for my message. Great scheme, isn't it?"

"Yes; but how did you come to stop on it?"

"Why, 'bout three months ago I married the girl. You wouldn't expect a man to go to all that trouble in order to keep up communication with his own wife, would you?"—Chicago Herald.

CARP CULTURE.

The Profits to Be Derived From a Fish Pond on the Farm.

The carp fish is a native of China. According to missionaries who penetrated the interior of China at an early date, multitudes of these fish ascended the rivers and into the rice fields through the ditches used to flood them, and there deposited their eggs, where they soon hatched. During the month of May the people bar the river in various places and with mats and hurdles collect the eggs and young fish that are just hatched, put them in vases and offer them for sale. Merchants come from other provinces to get them for individual ponds. They were imported into Germany and Austria between 400 and 600 years ago. Carp have been caught at Frankfort, in Germany, that weighed 75 pounds. They are a very prolific fish. A five-year-old female has laid 500,000 eggs. There are three varieties of carp-scale, parti-scale and scaleless carp. They all have the same form. In buying carp to stock ponds always be sure you buy of a reliable breeder that has pure-bred fish, as $2 to $5 more on a hundred fish or on a dozen spawners does not amount to any thing in starting a pond, because if you get pure-bred fish in the start, and take proper care, you can keep them pure. There are some breeders selling fish that are mixed with gold fish, catfish, chubs, etc. They are worthless at any price. Not over one farmer in one hundred but can have fresh fish in season if he will. Some say it will be overdone. Look at the large cities to supply with fresh fish. German carp will command from 12 to 15 cents per pound wholesale, now, in our cities. Can you make one-third of this clear on hogs, cattle or poultry, with the time taken in their care? Carp can be raised at one-third the price of poultry, by actual test. You can raise in a one-acre pond 2,000 pounds of carp, with feeding $20 worth of feed. By experiment of reliable carp culturists near our place, one ton of mill feed will produce 1,800 pounds of fish. At the small sum of 8 cents a pound, this will leave you the neat profit of $124 an acre, to say nothing of three or four hundred dollars' worth of small fish over enough to keep in your pond. Spring is the time to buy fish and make ponds, but fall will do quite as well. The flesh of carp is nice, juicy and sweet, as good for table use as any fish caught in northern lakes and rivers. I have eaten of white fish, the famous black bass and all others, and carp is as good as any of them. Some are publishing that carp tastes muddy. If you starve the fish in a mud hole and compel them to eat mud, you could not expect any thing else, any more than if you feed a cow rotten apples and expect her to give good milk and make good butter. If you attend the carp they will pay you well. Carp thrive best in shallow, warm-water ponds, and if they have good forage and a little feed, will gain 3 to 4 1-2 pounds in a single season. Carp do not get their teeth till one year old, and after this they grow very fast.—Cor. Ohio Farmer.

GRIDDLE-CAKES.

The Invention of the Most Perfect Product of Epicurean Art.

Griddle-cakes were invented by the mother of Pythagoras at seven o'clock in the morning, 590 B. C. On tasting the first one, which was served up hot, her son is said to have exclaimed, in his own beautiful Greek tongue: "Gimmeanotherquick!" which the reader is at liberty to translate as freely as he pleases.

The Chinese claim to have introduced the griddle-cake several centuries before the mother of Pythagoras thought of it; but, as they also claim to have invented the pocket-corkscrew and various other ideas purely American in origin, we do not trust them.

We sing our distrust to the Chinese at short range, with a six-shooter. Until they produce a griddle-cake of earlier vintage than seven o'clock in the morning, 590 B. C., as an evidence of good faith, we shall continue to claim that the griddle-cake is of Grecian mold, and to give full credit to the esteemed and excellent maternal ancestor of the late Mr. Pythagoras, of Greece.

I do not envy the possessor of great wealth so much as I do the man who can eat eighteen hot griddle-cakes, and then go around with a sweet smile and a bearing of calm repose. For what are wealth, honors and a plug-hat to a man, kind reader, if he must turn away from the tempting brunette griddle-cake while it smoketh and giveth its odor to his nostrils?

Did not one of America's greatest statesmen say, in a moment of enthusiasm: "Give me griddle-cakes or give me death?" Did not another wise and eminent publicist and warrior say, in that emphatic manner peculiarly his own: "The blessings of the griddle-cake, like the dews of Heaven, shall descend alike upon the rich and the poor?" These little things, trifling as they may seem to some, show how near the griddle-cake is to the impulsive American heart, and how near it will continue to be there. Congress could not bring about civil war quicker than by imposing a special tax on home-made griddle-cakes.

But the griddle-cake habit, while it may be a blessing when indulged in moderation, will cause remorse—deep-bordered remorse—if carried to excess. A friend of mine, who has long been in the habit of eating twenty-four hot griddle-cakes at a sitting, had occasion to call in his physician the other day, and was told candidly and calmly that he must break off from the griddle-cake habit or go to an early grave.

"Very well, doctor," he answered, with a smile of resignation: "can you give me the name of a cheap and reliable undertaker who will not put pinchbeck handles on my coffin, and charge for solid silver?"—Scott Way, in Puck.

—Sixteen million pounds of fruit is a good product for one State; yet that is the total weight of what California contributed to the comfort of the country last year in grapes, peaches, plums, apples and apricots.—Chicago Tribune.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

H. H. GRANICE ..... EDITOR

SONOMA, JUNE 19, 1886.

Communications upon matters of local or general interest solicited.

Communications designed to call attention to any matter of limited or individual interest will not be inserted unless paid for as an advertisement.

The author's real name must accompany all communications, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. This rule will not be deviated from.

SONOMA VALLEY and the Glen Ellen district ought to be well represented in the Sonoma county exhibit to be held under the auspices of Pomona Grange of Santa Rosa, at the Lick House, San Francisco, during the week of the Grand Army Encampment's visit. G. N. Whittaker, Chairman of the Committee having charge of the exhibit, writes us that contributions of the different productions of this section are earnestly solicited. All articles should be addressed to Mr. Whittaker at Santa Rosa, who will pay transportation charges. These should be accompanied with a letter or card stating the name of the article and the person sending the same. As all sections of Sonoma county will place on exhibition, samples of their productions, our wine-growers, dairymen and farmers should be on the alert and see that this section be not neglected. It is important that our valley be represented in this exhibit, producing as it does wines, brandies and agricultural products which will compete with those of the most favored sections. Such an exhibit will be bound to create a favorable impression on the large number of strangers which the Grand Army reunion is sure to bring to our coast, and will do much toward attracting attention to our valley.

THE State Board of Viticultural Commissioners held a meeting in San Francisco last Monday, and passed resolutions commending Mr. Wetmore's work in Washington in behalf of measures by our representatives there for the viticulturists of this State and insisting on the passage of the Morrow, Green and Stanford wine bills. The Board also acknowledged the prompt measures of assistance taken by Governor Stoneman in telegraphing to the Treasury Department at Washington the urgent need and importance to our State of the wine bills now before Congress.

AT the funeral of County Clerk Peachy of Oroville, who committed suicide, a pathetic scene occurred. The father of Peachy, a man gray-bearded and bent with age, met face to face with his former wife—the mother—from whom he had been separated twenty-five years. The father resides at Los Angeles and the mother at Oakland. They have married again and have families. Their actions over the body of their boy were sad to behold. The father tenderly stroked the hair of his son and the mother kissed the lips. Both wept bitterly, but neither recognized the other.

THE Grand Army edition of the "San Jose Mercury," which has been sent us by its editor, Chas. M. Shortridge, is one of the most creditable productions of newspaper enterprise that has come to our notice for a long time. It is replete with information regarding San Jose and the Santa Clara valley and will do much toward advertising that section to the large number of Grand Army visitors who are now sojourning in the State and the others yet to come.

W. J. BRYAN, a druggist of San Francisco, has been appointed Postmaster of that city, vice Samuel W. Backus, whose term has expired. His appointment was no doubt a disappointment to Democratic politicians, who seemed to have pinned their faith to men better known in its councils. However, the appointment meets with general approval, if we except the disappointed candidates and a few of their friends.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Mrs. Cleveland and Her Wedding Presents.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, June 7, 1886.

The President's absence from the White House gives the old mansion its wonted old time summer appearance when Grant and Hayes and Arthur went summering to Long Branch, to the country fairs or to the Yellowstone. Mr. Cleveland was absent for a month last summer, but he has been away from his post less than any of his three predecessors.

There is a great deal of curiosity to see the wedding presents, but the President is determined that it shall not be gratified. One of the Cabinet ladies says that nobody outside of the Cleveland and Folsom families knows anything about them, and Col. Lamont says that two-thirds of the boxes have not been opened. There will be some funny disclosures from all I hear on the outside. I know of five or six members of Congress who sent in contributions, and some of them did so with a more comprehensive purpose than merely to compliment the bride. The custom house officials at New York and other office holders elsewhere forwarded gifts, and some came from people who have not yet received appointments, but hope to draw a prize in the lottery. The President will be very much disposed to return such gifts when he finds them, and it would be just like him to do so. He has administered rebukes more severe than that since he has been in the White House, and nothing could be more offensive to him than an attempt to win his favor by attention to his bride. It was perfectly proper for the members of the Cabinet and others who were invited to the wedding to take gifts, and it was a pleasure for the President to receive them, but it is not customary in private life for persons who are not bidden to a wedding feast to send presents, and the President made it as plain as possible that his marriage was a private affair. It will be no surprise if many of the gifts are returned to the donors, but whether they are or not their source and character will remain concealed.

One of the pleasant predictions anent to coming social life at the White House, is that Miss Cleveland will spend a great deal of her time there. Mrs. Cleveland will very properly rely greatly on the experience gained and the good judgement displayed by Miss Cleveland, who, in her management, is said by the severest critics to have made but few blunders.

The resignation of Mr. Manning, as Secretary of the Treasury Department, was not altogether a surprise to the public as rumors to that effect have been afloat for some time, and it seems quite a natural step. He was uncertain when he would again be able to resume his official duties and was not willing to be only a nominal head of the department. The President has done wisely, however, in declining to accept the resignation, and has offered Mr. Manning leave of absence from all duties until October next, in order that he may give himself up to the enjoyment of pleasure and beneficial changes of scene and air. His position at the head of the Treasury Department has been in every way a credit to the administration and it would indeed seem a pity to retire from the field of usefulness and honor now before him. His official papers give evidence of a broad and intelligent conception of the interests of the country, and, equally to his credit, they have been filled with good, sound, financial doctrine. Together with his wife and Joseph L. Miller, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Mr. Manning left for Hot Springs, Saturday, and during his absence Mr. Fairchild will be acting Secretary.

The President still keeps on with his vetoes of private pension bills. In this he will receive the support of all right-minded men without regard to party. The Government proposes to pension all ex-Union soldiers who, by reason of wounds received in battle or by reason of diseases contracted in the line of service, are suffering physical disability; but these claims that are passed by Congress have all, or the majority of them, been passed by the Pension office and rejected. It is but reasonable to suppose that the clerks and examiners in the Pension Office, most of whom are ex-soldiers themselves, would be leniently inclined toward the applications of their late comrades in arms, and would only reject their claims when forced to do so either by lack of evidence or manifest unworthiness. Of course there are exceptions, but it may be generally stated that when a claim is rejected by the officials at the Pension Office it has very little merit in it. Whatever members of Congress or the Committees of Pensions may think of the President's action in scrutinizing for himself the claims which they have passed, his course in this respect will command the confidence of good citizens of all parties as it shows that Mr. Cleveland is bent upon honest government, and has the courage to act upon his convictions.

SANTA ROSA ITEMS.

[Santa Rosa Democrat.]

Only two marriage licenses have been issued this month.

Out of the sixty applicants for certificates at the teachers' examination, held this week, fifteen failed on test studies.

Connor, who was stabbed by Matheson some time since, and taken to the County Hospital for treatment, is rapidly convalescing.

C. A. Perry, the young man who superintended the Santa Rosa cannery, is here making arrangements to open the same in a few days, if, after investigation, he finds there is sufficient fruit to justify it. He intends employing all white help this season.

M. Donovan's little girl, about 10 years of age, was severely bitten on the arm by a large dog, Monday. The Marshal, on being so informed, led the canine down to the creek and made a peace offering of him. The teeth of the brute met in the tender flesh of the little one's arm, and she is at present confined to her bed.

The case of Dr. J. F. Boyce vs. The Board of Supervisors of Sonoma county, for the recovery of $50, professional charges for services rendered in the rape cases some three months ago, was decided in favor of the plaintiff by Justice Brown, Thursday afternoon, J. T. Noon appearing for Dr. Boyce and District Attorney Allen for the county.

The jury trying the case of Denis Winters et al. vs. Dr. Graves returned a verdict Wednesday night at 11.15 o'clock, after being out six hours, in favor of the defendant. Thus ends one of the most important cases to the medical profession ever tried in this county. The jury stood nine to three for the verdict, making a close shave for the doctor.

A fishing party, who returned from a trip several days ago, say that they killed a rattlesnake on the banks of a stream in Knight's Valley which measured over seven feet in length and three inches in diameter, and having eleven rattles and one button. One of the party came upon the snake—which was hidden in the grass—very suddenly, and just escaped being bitten.

Mrs. Cora Farrer of Petaluma, who came to this city on Friday to attend the funeral of J. P. Clark, met with a painful accident in the afternoon, while visiting Mrs. Catrin, who lives on the road leading to the County Farm. Her horse became frightened and upset the buggy, throwing Mrs. Farrer to the ground, and breaking her left arm above the elbow. She was brought to town, her arm set, and at last accounts was doing nicely.

Teemer's Silver Bottle.

Since Teemer, by his victory over Hanlan, has become champion oarsman of America, a great deal of interest is taken in him abroad and efforts are being made to bring about a match between him and Beach of Australia, who now holds the world's championship. The London "Sporting Life," in a recent number, publishes a New York letter giving Teemer's record and also a sketch of the appearance and habits of the American champion. Describing Teemer's cosy home in McKeesport, Pa., the correspondent quotes him as saying: "The only bottle I am fond of is that one," pointing to a beautiful silver bottle standing on a wall bracket. The bottle is made of coin silver, with a satin finish. Engraved on a burnished space is the inscription: "To John Teemer, champion oarsman of America, from McKeesport friends." It seems that Teemer used to work in the iron-mills at McKeesport, where the workmen are in the habit of using the well-known German remedy St. Jacobs Oil for any pain or ailment in the muscles or joints. Teemer has found it of indispensable value to him in keeping him in the best physical condition and his fondness for it is well-known. This fact was remembered by some friends, who, after his victory over Hanlan, wanted to give him a memento; and so they had made for him a facsimile in silver of the style of bottle in which St. Jacobs Oil is put up. Teemer's pretty little wife seems to think as much of that bottle as he does and promptly resorts to it whenever their bouncing, big baby boy hurts himself in any way.

Æsthetics is the science of the beautiful. The meed of credit for promoting personal æsthetics is due to J. C. Ayer & Co., whose incomparable Hair Vigor is a universal beautifier of the hair. A WELL-KNOWN CITIZEN ARRESTED.

The Outcome of a Real Estate Transaction.

On Thursday evening of last week, Detective Dan Coffee made his appearance in this town, and speculation was rife as to the nature of his business in these parts. It was surmised by some that he was simply up on a pleasure trip, while others hinted that his visit forboded evil to some one in our midst. The latter looked wise when it became known that at an early hour on the following Saturday the detective had repaired to Pioneer Grove and arrested A. Brown, a gentleman well and favorably known in Sonoma Valley. The arrest was made at the instigation of Mrs. Sarah Melzner, who claims to have been defrauded out of $2,100 in a real estate transaction in which Mr. Brown and a man by the name of Creedon figured. It is charged that about two years ago Creedon sold to Brown certain homestead property located in the Mission, San Francisco. The deed of sale purported to have been signed by Creedon and his wife it now transpires was never signed by the latter, she being an inmate of the Stockton Insane Asylum, and her signature undoubtedly a forgery. It is claimed that Brown, after purchasing the property, obtained knowledge of the worthlessness of the title to the property and disposed of the same to Mrs. Melzner in order that he might not lose by the transaction.

Mr. Brown has been a resident of Sonoma Valley about seven years, is well-to-do and has the reputation of being upright and honest in all his dealings, and his friends look upon his arrest as a scheme to compel him to refund the purchase money paid him by the complainant. They claim that Brown purchased the property in good faith, the title being passed on by Millar & Simpson, searchers of records, San Francisco, who pronounced it valid before Brown made the purchase. It is claimed also that he leased the premises to parties who were very undesirable tenants and as he could not get them out of the house, he decided to advertise the property for sale, which he did, and Mrs. Melzner purchased the same. There can be no doubt that there has been a piece of rascality practiced in the transaction, but that Brown was cognizant of it his friends indignantly deny. They say he was imposed upon by the party who originally sold to him, and the simple fact of his having disposed of the property to another does not constitute a cause for a criminal prosecution. However, be this as it may, the case will be ventilated in the courts shortly, when the true facts will come out.

The Turners at Petaluma.

Eighteen members of the Sonoma Turn Verein visited Petaluma last Sunday and participated in the twelfth Bezirk Turn Fest. A large number of Turners were present from different parts of the State. The procession, which took place on the above day, was one of the largest ever witnessed in Petaluma. At 9.30 A. M. the command was given to fall into line and headed by Gesser Brass Band of eighteen pieces, the procession marched from Turner Hall through the principal streets and thence to Agricultural Park, where the exercises were to be held. Thirty-two flags and banners were counted in the procession, the handsomest being those carried by the Sonoma and Los Angeles Turners. In the turning contest Mr. Chas. Hartman of San Francisco, carried off the first prize, and was declared the champion athlete of the Pacific Coast. The festival lasted three days and was one of the most successful ever held in the interior.

The bond of James Allen, agent of the Pennock Road Grader Company, for $2,500, was approved.

A motion to establish a pound district in Dry Creek school district was adopted.

The name of Franklin Shields was presented for the vacancy caused by the death of L. D. Cockrill, Justice of the Peace for Analy township, on petition of residents, but as Mr. Shields' name is not on the Great Register, the appointment was not made.

The resignation of Wm. J. Cunningham, Roadmaster of Bodega, district, was deferred until he makes his final settlement.

The certification of A. Skaggs, that he had completed the road to Skaggs' Springs, at a cost of $300, was read and not acted upon.

Jailer Smith's report, stating the number of prisoners in the County Jail, was received and filed. May 1st, eight prisoners; five received during May; discharged, ten; in custody, June 1st, three.

Col. M. L. McDonald and I. DeTurk appealed to the Board, on behalf of the Sonoma County Fruit and Grape-Growers Association, for an appropriation of $1,000—or a less sum—to aid Pomona Grange in making a display of the products of the county at the State Fair and during the Encampment of the G. A. R. this summer.

Supervisor Allen doubted the authority of the Board to make the appropriation; but expressed his willingness to vote for it if it were within the province of the Board.

Supervisor Coulter expressed similar views, and would vote for $1.500 for the purpose, if authority could be shown.

No action taken.

Mr J. F. Kinslow, contractor to put the low granite wall around the Court House Square, requested the Board to have the earth thrown in the way, by order of Superintendent Denman, from the sidewalks, to be removed.

Supervisor Allen held that the contractor should clear the way; under his contract, and the Board took no action in the matter.

The Board then adjourned till 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

TUESDAY, June 8th.

The Board met at 9 o'clock. All the members present and Chairman Ellis presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The bill of A. Skaggs, for building a road along the south side of Warm Springs creek, from the Hamilton Ford to the Patten Ford, for $300, was taken up and discussed.

On motion of Mr. Coulter, the sum of $300 was transferred from the Bridge Fund to the Mendocino Road District Fund, for the purpose of paying the bill.

The quarterly report of F. Breitenbach, Justice of the Peace of Sonoma, was read and, on motion of Supervisor Coulter, approved and placed on file.

A communication was read, stating that the residents of Ioaria School District had voted to raise a tax of $300, to pay off the school-house debt. The communication was accompanied by the affidavit of the judges, to the effect that 10 votes had been cast all in favor of the tax. There being no proof of publication of the notice calling the election, the matter was postponed for the present.

A communication from E. A. Rogers, one of the committee appointed by the Sonoma County Fruit and Grape-Growers Union was read, asking for an appropriation to assist Pomona Grange in making a proper exhibit of the resources of Sonoma county at the G. A. R. Encampment and the Mechanics' Fair in San Francisco this summer.

On motion of Mr. Connolly, the matter was temporarily postponed.

The projected road in Cloverdale township through lands of Allen and George Bond, Conrad Haehl, the estate of Herman Haunz, deceased, and others, was considered, with Judge Rutlege as counsel for Haehl and T. F. Barry for the Haunz estate, in opposition, and Judge Campbell for the petitioners. After much discussion the matter was deferred for further action.

Supervisor Connolly's motion prevailed to name the new school district at Bodega the Bay School District.

The terms of Professors C. E. Hutton and L. K. Webb of the County School Board, having expired, on motion of Mr. Coulter, Prof. Hutton was reappointed and Prof. G. P. Anderson was appointed in place of Prof. Webb.

On motion of Supervisor Allen, the sum of $378 50 was allowed out of the Indigent Fund for the month of June.

E. Gillan, Roadmaster of Sonoma, presented a discharge showing that he had paid into the County Treasury the sum of $300, which was placed in his hands by the Board to be used in some road matter, and which was subsequently ordered returned by the Board.

The discharge was received and placed on file.

The County Physician submitted his report for the month of May, which was accepted and placed on file.

On motion of Mr. Allen, the Chairman was authorized to approve the bond of J. A. Allen; also the bond of the Pennock Road Scraper Co.

The bill of J. A. Allen, for $275, for two road scrapers, was allowed.

The matter of the private road in Cloverdale township, petitioned for by E. M. Hendrix, George and Albert Bond, was then discussed.

[Independent Calistogan.]

A red-rubber-stamp fiend visited Calistoga a few weeks ago and took orders and money from a few business men for rubber stamps to be used in disfiguring their letter paper, envelopes, etc., and as the worthy has failed to either forward his rubber printing mops or reply to letters of inquiry, the supposition is that investments made with him are lost. But by thus depriving business men of the rubber mops in question he has done them a favor; for if there is anything in the commercial world that thoroughly "gives a man away," and impresses people with the fact that he is doing a one-horse business, it is the "sloppy" printing done with mops sold by the red-rubber-stamp fiend.

Undigested Food

In the stomach develops an acid which stings the upper part of the throat and palate, causing "heartburn." It also evolves a gas which produces "wind on the stomach," and a feeling and appearance of distension in that organ after eating. For both this acidity and swelling Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is a much better remedy than alkaline salts, like hartshorn and carbonate of soda. A wineglassful of the bitters, after or before dinner, will be found to act as a reliable carminative or preventive. This fine specific for dyspepsia, both in its acute and chronic form, also prevents and cures malarial fever, constipation, liver complaint, kidney troubles, nervousness and debility. Persons who observe in themselves a decline of vigor should use this fine tonic without delay.

RAILROAD CURVES ARE USEFUL.

"You may live till the yellow dog fades from history," said a conductor the other night as the train hummed along, "but you'll never see a straight railroad down a steep hill."

The curious passenger with the wart on his nose rolled up his eyes in astonishment. "My dear fellow," he exclaimed, staring at the conductor, "I do not understand what is to prevent a train from running straight down-hill."

"Just this," continued the conductor; "curves are necessary on a very heavy grade. Passengers are sometimes struck with the great number of curves on the road while it is up among the hills. They imagine the curves are merely necessary because the road winds around the hills. This is only partly true. If the railroad were to cross directly at heavy grade it would still be necessary to have the curves. No train can go at a high rate of speed down a heavy grade on a straight track with safety. The explanation is simple. The tendency of any heavy body like a train is to move in a straight line, and the attraction of gravitation is not sufficient to overcome the tendency to shoot off where great speed or momentum has been obtained. Hence, a train flying down a straight track on the hillside, instead of keeping the track would shoot off on a tangent into space."

"The curve," continued the wise man in the blue uniform, "is one of the greatest safeguards in mountain engineering. This is particularly noticeable in the case of a freight track. It very frequently happens that an engine, drawing a heavy freight train, cannot stick close enough to the track, when going down a heavy grade to control her speed. An engine going down hill is really more helpless than the same engine going up hill. That is, she can pull a greater weight up the hill than she can hold back in going down the hill. It is a very common experience with engineers of freight engines to have their trains literally push them down heavy grades at a high rate of speed. In such instances every curve is so much salvation at the right time. The curve retards the speed and enables the wheels of the flying train to get a firmer 'purchase' on the track. Railroading in the hills would be very dangerous were it not for the curves sprinkled along at frequent intervals.

On some railroads it is the custom to disconnect the lever from the driving rods when a passenger train is descending a heavy grade that extends for many miles. The train is managed altogether by her air brakes. Every curve acts as a brake on the speed, and in this way the train can swing along for hours without attaining a too reckless speed, with the aid of the air brakes."

Just then the train went around a curve and the curious passenger was thrown to one side of the seat.

"It's a wonder to me," he gasped, "that these measly express trains don't fly off the track going around these heavy curves."

"Well sir," said the conductor, "I've been railroading for twenty-five years and I never yet knew or heard of a train jumping the track on a curve. There isn't the slightest danger on a graded curve, and hardly any on a flat curve."

A Model Sister.

A lady correspondent of the "Courier-Journal" says with grim sarcasm: A young man who wears primrose gloves says: My idea of a sister is to graduate at a fashionable school and speak irreproachable Parisian; should like her to wear the loveliest of dresses and bonnets, to go to the opera in the selectest society and never to appear to enjoy too much; when she drives out only to nod to the proper people. I want her such a sweet girl with so much style; would like her to say, "Who are those people?" when she saw anyone she did not know, and to believe that her little clique of little people was the very point and crown of the world; would not have her know anything of literature and life; she must think it wicked not to go to church on Sunday, and finally she must make a good match, a son of one of the oldest families, and live in one of the newest houses on the best street, and then the dreadful Mrs. Grundy, whom we all so love and conciliate, could not talk about her. This is all a noble man could ask of a noble woman.

The Romance of a Maine Girl.

[Lewiston Journal.]

When a young girl she fell in love with a poor fellow, who returned her affections, but didn't have money enough to pay the parson for marrying them. It was decided that he should start for China to seek his fortune. She made a vow not to marry for three years, and if, at the expiration of that time he had not returned, she would be at perfect liberty to act at her own pleasure about matrimony. Six months past and the girl heard not a word from her lover. A year went by, and no letter. The girl grew almost distracted, for she came to the conclusion that he had either gone back on her or was dead. A second year went by and nothing was heard from him. At this time another gentleman began paying his attentions to the lady, and finally asked her her hand in marriage. The girl thought of her vow and said no, not until the three years is past. The second man urged her with all his power to marry him. He offered her wealth and luxury, but she was true to her vow, and said that she would not marry till the expiration of the three years. Long before this she had supposed her lover dead.

The end of the third year was drawing to a close, and she had promised the ardent suitor for a year and a half that when the time was up she would marry him on the following day if her former lover did not return. The day came, and the man didn't return from China. On that very day the wedding bells were rung, and they were united in marriage. Hardly had the marriage ceremony been performed when a ship came into the bay from China, and on board was her lover, who had left her three years ago to gain a fortune for them both—returned. Imagine if you can her grief when she saw him. He came back, abundantly rich, to claim her as his bride, and she had three days before married another. The blow nearly crushed them both. But six years wore away, and in the meantime the man married and went out West to live. In a few years his wife died. He had not heard one word from his old love for many years, and one day, merely from curiosity, he addressed a letter to her brother, inquiring if she was alive, and if so, where she resided. He received a letter shortly after that she had been a widow for several years, and was living near Portland. The gentleman left for Portland on the next train, and in less than a week's time they were married, and to-day they are living happily together in the suburbs of Portland.

Bill Nye in Washington.

[Boston Globe.]

Washington is the hot-bed of gayety, and general headquarters for the recherche business. It would be hard to find a bontonier aggregation than the one I was just at, to use the words of a gentleman who was there, and who asked me if I wrote "The Heathen Chinee." He was a very talented man, with a broad sweep of skull and vague yearning for something more tangible—to drink. He was in Washington, he said, in the interest of Mingo county. I forgot to ask him where Mingo county might be. He took a great interest in me and talked with me long after he really had anything to say. He was one of those fluent conversationalists frequently met with in society. He used one of those web-perfecting talkers—the kind that can be fed with raw Roman punch and that will turn out punctuated talk in links like varnished sausages. Being a poor talker myself, and rather more fluent as a listener, I did not interrupt him. He said that he was sorry to notice how young girls and their parents came to Washington as they would to a matrimonial market. I was sorry also to hear it. It pained me to know that young ladies should allow themselves to be bamboozled into matrimony. Why was it, I asked, that matrimony should ever single out the young and fair?

"Ah," said he, "it is indeed rough!"

Then he breathed a sigh that shook the foliage of the speckled geranium near by, and killed an artificial caterpillar that hung on its branches.

"Matrimony is all right," said he, "if properly brought about. It breaks my heart, though, to notice how Washington is used as a matrimonial market. It seems to me almost as if these here young ladies were brought here like slaves and exposed for sale." I had noticed that they were somewhat exposed, but I did not know that they were for sale. I asked him if the waists of party dresses had always been so sadly in the minority, and he said they had.

NORTH STAR WASH BOARD

Pat. Feb. 27th, 1877. ASK YOUR GROCER FOR IT! And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability. If he will not get it for you we will forward one on receipt of price. PRICE { Family Size, 50c. Laundry Size, 75c.

This Wash Board is made of ONE SOLID SHEET OF HEAVY CORRUGATED ZINC, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any wash board in the market. The frame is made of hard wood, and held together with iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a wash board which for economy, excellence and durability is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying "It will last too long, we can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise consumers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASH BOARD. THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST. Manufactured by PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO., 243 & 250 West Polk St., Chicago, Ill.
